

CHICAGONISTA

movers, shakers & baby makers

Don't let the frigid temps stop you from enjoying the city

mjtam | Feb 09, 2010 | Comments 0

4 tweets

retweet

Chicago is alive and well with events all year long no matter how frigid those temperatures get. So, what are you waiting for? Go and enjoy our beautiful city. Can't figure out where to start? Here are a couple of February recommendations from some places that I've recently hit and some that I'm still trying to get to.

The 2010 Chicago Auto Show is here. The Chicago Auto Show continues to be the largest and longest-running auto show in North America and this year promises to reveal more than a dozen new products. McCormick Place, February 9 – February 11, 2010. Buy your tickets online, you'll save time!

❖ What are you doing for Valentine's Day? Maybe start prepping by peeling away some winter harshness for you or with a loved one. Why not visit Mario Tricoci and experience Radiance Peel. I just had the opportunity to try this at the 900 N. Michigan location and noticed the instant glow on my face. This peel can also be done during lunch time and you even get a complimentary make-up application after your facial service so you can get back to what you're doing after.

❖ What are you doing for Valentine's Day? Maybe start prepping by peeling away some winter harshness for you or with a loved one. Why not visit Mario Tricoci and experience Radiance Peel. I just had the opportunity to try this at the 900 N. Michigan location and noticed the instant glow on my face. This peel can also be done during lunch time and you even get a complimentary make-up application after your facial service so you can get back to what you're doing after.

Want to win a spa service? Be their Facebook fan and Help Mario Spread the Love: Post your pics & stories of your volunteering/service efforts on their wall and 5 posts will be selected* to enjoy a Signature Spa package!