

SKIN CARE CONCERNS—SOLVED

Put your best face forward with advice from ELLE's Beauty and Fitness director! Join the live Facebook chat with Emily Dougherty on Wednesday, 11/3 at 1PM EST.

Sponsored by
OLAY
Click here to

« Last Chance to Sign up for Our \$500 Scarpasa Shoe Shopping Giveaway! And Meet Our Beyond The Rack Winner! | Main | Fall/Winter '10 Trends. | Adora The Fall Fedora »

August 31, 2010

Beauty Beat. Tricks to Makeover Your Makeup Bag, Yesterday.

I have a confession to make. I am completely guilty of maintaining an overly-crowded cosmetic bag full of used up, and dried out lip glosses and eye liners. When Mario Tricoci Hair Salon and Day Spas announced their "Do This, Not That" makeup bag makeover project, I was thrilled! This staple cosmetic theme encourages women to revamp their makeup bags by simply tossing out old mascaras, concealers, or any other products that haven't been used in a minimal of two months. Additional rules to trail include, tossing out products that are one year and older, duplicates of the same cosmetics, and the unusable; you know, that ice blue eye shadow that dates back to circa 1975? In a recent press release, Cheryl Santucci, director for Mario Tricoci Hair Salons and Day Spas noted that a woman's cosmetic bag should be simplified and non-cluttered. "You really just need a combination of practical everyday basics and versatile makeup items that can change your look from day to evening." She also recommends rebuilding your bag by sorting out your cosmetics to create three different beauty kits. The 'complete kit' will contain ALL of your beauty items, while the 'emergency kit' will contain "I-only-have-five-minutes-to-put-my-face-on" essentials. Finally, the 'touch up kit' includes a lip gloss, mascara, and blush for the extremely busy beauty addict.

About

Second City Style Ads

FASHION BLOGADS

Advertise here

Second City Style

